

Two of the people who make SA great

CALLIE WATSON
LIFESTYLE REPORTER

ONE is a top film producer behind hits such as Wolf Creek who jet-sets between Adelaide, Europe and America.

The other is an entrepreneur who has built a business that provides health care at home to more than 20,000 Australians each year.

What David Lightfoot and Virginia Bullock do have in common is both have been nominated for the 2009 South Australian of the Year Awards.

"I'm absolutely flabbergasted," Mr Lightfoot said of his nomination in the arts category.

His latest film, Coffin Rock, will take him to Germany, the U.S. city of Chicago and several other cities next month as part of the promotional trail.

Springfield resident Ms Bullock set up her business, Home Support Services, 20 years ago and now employs 350 people in SA and Queensland.

She was nominated in the category of health and community.

"It really is an honour, there are a lot of worthy people out there," Ms Bullock said.

To nominate someone visit www.sagreat.com.au or phone 8211 8111 before October 5.

HONOURED: South Australian of the Year nominees David Lightfoot and Virginia Bullock yesterday.

Picture: TAIT SCHMAAL